If KCPR can raise the needed funds then station listeners may soon hear Jeff Riodel in stereo. More than $11,000 is needed to make the conversion. Petitions are available to sign requesting assistance from the Students Affairs Council.

Funds key to stereo campaign for KCPR

Since its meager beginnings in 1968, KCPR, the voice of Cal Poly at 91.5 FM, has spoken without the broadcast of stereo. Now, a full-scale campaign to convert the station to stereo is being waged and much of the campus is getting involved.

According to Blair Helsing, station manager, the stereo project will cost $11,170.

"We're going to rebuild our station, virtually from the ceiling downward," Helsing said. "When the project is completed, we'll have a new control board, new turntables, new transmitter controls and of course a whole new sound," he said.

Initial plans to go stereo were made last December when the project's estimated cost was $7,500. Inflation and the purchase of a new transmitter, caused the price to rise almost $4,000.

"Our old 2000-watt transmitter, which was built in 1949, blew up just before Poly Royal. Since that time, KCPR has been 10 watts; but just this week we were able to purchase a year-old 2000-watt transmitter with state funds," Helsing said.

"Since state funds were used, KCPR's replacement budget for next year was all souked up, and part of the equipment that we need for the stereo project was included in that budget. As a result, we'll have to buy this equipment with other funds."

Funding is the key factor in the question of whether KCPR will go stereo or not. An effort to raise the $11,000 has encompassed both the campus and the city of San Luis Obispo.

Helsing said the station hopes to split the cost of the project between the campus and its surrounding community.

"Since KCPR is a public, non-commercial radio station and is licensed to serve the community in which we're located, we think it's fair the City of San Luis Obispo be called upon to assist us as well," Helsing said.

"Toward that end, the station has been airing announcements asking for private donations as well as letters of support for the stereo project. Everyone is feeling the crunch of the current economic situation, as donations have totaled $15 to this time," Helsing said.

"Assistance may be coming from Pacific Gas and Electric Co., the San Luis Obispo City Council and The Graduate, a local disco-restaurant," he said.

"These interests have been contacted and asked to help us in any way they can. PG&E and the City Council were asked for a simple donation, while we hope The Graduate will hold a benefit night for us," Helsing said.

KCPR staff members are circulating petitions, hoping to gather at least 5,000 signatures by the Student Affairs Council meeting, Wednesday. Then KCPR's proposal will be made.

"So far, over 1,000 signatures have been collected," Helsing said.

To obtain the other 4,000, staff members will take signatures at tables in the University Union Plaza and the library area Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Correction

Students who don't want their names to appear in the graduation program may file an objection with Dave Ciano, director of judicial affairs in Rm. 215 of the Administration Building. Mustang Daily reported Monday that objections should be turned in at Rm. 115 rather than Rm. 215.

Helsing is hopeful the signatures will show SAC that the students support the idea of having KCPR stereo.

"If we fill the chambers with people who want to voice their support for our project, SAC will have to see that it's worthwhile to spend $11,000 on a cause which stays right here on campus and gives pleasure to so many students. We think we've got a watertight case," Helsing said.

Petitions are available at the station, located in the Graphic Communications Building, Rm. 202.

Group bows out, end of concerts

There will be no more concerts this quarter at Cal Poly according to Randy Donant, advisor to the program board.

Since the Honk concert of May 4, in Chumash Auditorium the concert committee has had one disappointment after another.

King Fish, Rufus, Tower of Power and Jefferson Starship were possible performers this month but all ended up canceled.

The last tentative concert was Jefferson Starship, formerly The Jefferson Airplane, for May 31. When everything was arranged on the Cal Poly end, the Starship decided to bow out in order to do a free concert in San Francisco.

There are many reasons why the shows have not been able to go on. The major reason is the lack of facilities. Not counting the stadium, there are only two places Cal Poly can have concerts: the gym and Chumash.

For big concerts the gym would have to be used. According to the chairman of the concert committee, Bill Martin, concerts are last on the list for gym use.

Senior Week honors grads

A variety of events for graduating seniors will compose the 1975 Senior Week Activities beginning June 8 and ending with commencement on June 14.

The 25th annual Pushing Hubby Through Ceremony, honoring the wives of graduates, will be held in Chumash Auditorium from 2:30 p.m. to 4:40 p.m. on June 8.

Family and friends of graduating seniors are invited to attend this event. For further information, contact Beverly Blaswick at 544-8419.

The Senior Barbeque will be held in Cuesta Park on June 13 from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. The complete steak dinner is free to all Senior Week Activities cardholders.

Seniors may bring their guests who also are invited to enjoy the dinner at a cost of $5.75 per person. Tickets should be purchased as soon as possible since sales are limited.

Graduation day, June 14, will begin with the ROTC commissioning at 8:30 a.m.. The ceremony will be held in the Cal Poly Theatre. A brief "good morning coffee" will follow the event.

A Senior Week tradition is the Senior Brunch to be served to graduates, family and friends on June 14 from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. in Chumash Auditorium. The brunch is free to Senior Week Activities cardholders and a limited number of tickets may be purchased for guests at $2.50 each.

The Deans and department heads of the schools will serve as waiters at the brunch and also will provide the entertainment. Pegasus Magazine will be distributed to all cardholders at the brunch. The 28-page magazine includes a profile on the Senior Recognition Award winners who will be honored at the Senior Brunch.

Immediately following the brunch is the tree planting. A tree is presented by the senior class and planted on a suitable site with a plaque commemorating the year of the graduating class.

Seniors graduating with at least a cumulative grade point average of 3.5 and in the upper eight percent of their class will be honored by Phi Kappa Phi on June 14 at 1 p.m. in room 203 of the UU.

Commencement will begin at 5:30 p.m. on June 14 in the Mustang Stadium. Graduates should assemble in the physical continued on page 3

Macrame net to tie up Plaza

The plaza of the University Union will be wrapped in a giant macrame net by Jules and Kaethe Kliot today and Wednesday.

"Mummy lace" tapestry will be hung from various parts of the University Union, composing Translusion II. Students, friends and other interested persons are invited to help the Kliots.

The two artists are from Berkeley where Jules is an architect and Kaethe is a textile artist. They created a similar event in San Francisco by meshing the Transamerica Building during the summer of 1974.

The nets used here will be made using an ancient weaving technique called sprang. This method involves a series of parallel ropes twisted to form a loosely woven fabric.

In addition to this activity, the Kliots will give a lecture and slide show displaying the processes, methods and design of textile art tonight at 8 p.m. in Rm. 220 of the University Union.

Translusion II is sponsored by the ASI Fine Arts Committee and the ASI Craft Center.

Boycott of lettuce, grapes advocated

by ANNE ZERRIEN

"Here's my son's signature," remarked Vice-President Dale Andrews as he glanced at petitions calling for removal of iceberg lettuce and table grapes from cafeterias and snack bars on campus.

Andrews accepted the petitions, bearing 900 signatures of students and staff, on behalf of Pres. Robert Kennedy, who will present them to the Foundation board of directors.

The Foundation operates the campus food services and is involved in numerous other aspects of campus life, ranging from financial backing of Cal Poly's thoroughbred breeding farm to the administration of the federal funds that support the High School Equivalency Program.

United Farmworkers supporter Manuel Echavarria, is hoping the Foundation will suspend buying grapes and iceberg lettuce "until the struggle for union representation of farmworkers is resolved."

If the Foundation doesn't suspend purchases of grapes and lettuce Echavarria plans to launch "a leafletting campaign on campus, informing the students of the Foundation's position, our position, and asking over the petitions to Vice President Andrews."

Foundation director Al Amaral has not yet been contacted personally by any of the students who circulated the petitions.

"I'd like for somebody to see me about this thing," said Amaral. "No one from the sponsoring group has come in to discuss the matter. I'd like to discuss it with them."

Vulgarity

Editor:

Reading Bob Cox's comments (May 16) on the ASI elections is an exercise in editorial obfuscation, vulgarity, and puerility, another in a series of Mustang Daily scoops this year.

Item: His usage of the term rat-
-s to describe the 'conduct' of the candidates and their supporters, is at best an abdication of editorial decency; at worst a vulgarity one would expect from a natty snickering child.

Item: Cox claims that even the "conservatively oriented candidates have had problems, 'with keeping their campaign material intact from pranksters.'" Well that's awfully magnanimous of Mr. Cox, especially in light of the fact that his article, a showcase of newspaper cupidity, squarely places the blame on one of the conservative candidates. Polite, oh so polite.

Cox is using the shibboleth of Watergate to gore Chappell and his supporters to the endless delight of Mr. Hurtado's fans. Ipse dixit, since Hurtado is the annointed favorite son of Mustang Daily. I understand, perfectly.

Item: Cox, in a moment of orgiastic insipience, said, "Up to now, I haven't pointed fingers at anyone, 'but now it's fairly safe to do so.'" Mr. Cox, it's never safe to point fingers except when you have concrete and irrefutable proof. Do you have it?

Responsible journalism is based, everywhere except at Cal Poly, upon facts, not intimation, innuendo, or indency. To point your finger (no doubt the middle one) at Chappell without evidence is a good index of your poor newswriting ability.

Item: Cox states that Chappell and his supporters are possessed by an imagined conspiracy on the

Politics

Editor:

The current ASI elections have brought back to me some very distinct memories. As 1971-72 ASI president, I was the first in the history of Cal Poly to run for re-election. After three stormy elections, the political team of Baggett and Johnson won that race.

A supporter of Rob Chappell has recently compared Chappell's philosophy to that of Baggett and Johnson, so it's important that you become aware of some facts about their campaign tactics and resulting administration:

Briefly, you need to know that during my administration as ASI president we conceived and initiated the student housing service, student community services, day care center, legal aid and ethnic programming board. We also began weekly forums between ASI officers and students in the UU plaza, a Mustang Daily column and KCPR talk shows to open up student government to the student.

We constantly strived to deal with issues and problems long overdue for attention. By the end of the year it became apparent to me that these issues must receive continued support, not the sort of benign neglect Robin Baggett's candidacy offered.

part of the Mustang Daily against them. They may not be too far off.

On at least two occasions that I can personally recall, Marji Nieuwsma, editor of the paper, told me that she disliked Rob Chappell personally and politically. Now, that's strong stuff, eh?

How can a candidate get a fair shake in the campus press when the editor is violently predisposed against him? When the newspaper staff is against him? And when his opponent receives white gloves treatment?

When you make that trip to the polls on this Wednesday or Thursday, vote your conscience, not Marji Nieuwsma's or Bob Cox's. I for one do not believe that Mustang Daily controls public opinion at this campus, because the paper itself is too far removed from public opinion. Reading the Mustang Daily is an exercise in negativism; on Wednesday and Thursday, vote for Rob Chappell, a positive exercise.

Baggett and his mate Denny Johnson employed many dirty tricks, including the dissemination of false and misleading information about my policies, personality and goals.

They also claimed credit for popular programs which were initiated during my administration, enlisted the aid of a local radio station owner to run untrue and damaging reports about me, exceeded the campaign spending limit, and resorted to multiple voting and publishing fraudulent endorsements for their campaign. They won.

The next year Baggett and Johnson installed one major program, Roundhouse. They did all that with a SAC almost completely in their favor. They spent most of their time and prestige courting Nixon and Congressman Talcott, and Talcott sent both of them to law school for their troubles.

I too see some similarities between Chappell and Baggett and Johnson. In the Baggett and Johnson administration Rob Chappell was a strong advocate of their philosophies as a member of SAC.

It appears to me he may have learned some campaign tactics from them, by the looks of his material. Excessive spending, the aggressive tactics, racist innuendos, the bizarre "endorsement" in which former SAC rep. blame Hurtado for their own failures—it all sounds like another bum trip.

You people are being asked, coerced and frightened into voting against a candidate, rather than being convinced of those best qualified. Don't allow yourselves to be shoved around like a flock of sheep, or bullied by scare tactics that resemble those that brought us Nixon—the ultimate rip-off.

If you are really aware of the issues then you have a clear choice.

Mike Hurtado wants to work for what he thinks is right. He hopes most of you agree with the issues he has raised.

Vets should act now

Veterans who plan to enter school this summer or fall for the first time under the GI Bill are advised to act promptly if they want advance payment of educational checks.

Veterans planning to enter school should be sure to have a certificate of eligibility, which can be obtained from the nearest VA office.

The certificate must be presented to the school of the veteran's choice. The school, if it accepts the veteran, will forward the certificate and the enrollment certification to VA.

Officials explained that if the agency receives this information at least 30 days before registration, veterans who train half time or more may pick up their first check when they register. The first check will cover training allowances for the first two months, or one month and a portion of a month, depending upon the registration date.
